Teek Foods Q3 Profit Up, But Below Estimates

Teek Foods said today its fiscal third-quarter earnings were up more than two percent over the third quarter last year, but Wall Street analysts were looking for a higher number.

Teek posted a third-quarter profit of $92.2 million, or four cents per share, compared with a profit of $89.7 million, or three cents per share, in the same quarter a year ago. Revenue came in at $407.3 million, compared with $398 million a year ago.

Analysts were expecting earnings of five cents per share on $414 million revenue.

The company said the poor economy had cut into its high-end frozen foods business and the cooler summer had slowed sales of its soft drink lines. But "with a new pricing strategy and new winter products due on store shelves," the company said in its earnings release, "we expect to make up quickly for any lost ground this quarter."
