One of the newest technological trends is “cloud computing.” Some people are quite excited about cloud computing, while other people are quite confused about what cloud computing means.

Since cloud computing is a fairly new concept, it’s important to first understand what it means. Currently, when you want to use your computer, you typically run a software program that is installed in your computer. However, with cloud computing, you would go to the Internet to use a software program. In other words, the software would not need to be installed in your computer.

There are several advantages to cloud computing. For example, you wouldn’t need to buy a computer with a large amount of memory (remember, the software is on the Internet, not your computer). That would save you, and companies, money. Another advantage is that you could use any computer anywhere in the world and still be able to find your files on the Net.

38. What would be a good title for this article?
- A. More and More People Are Using Cloud Computing

  - D. The Meaning and Advantages of Cloud Computing
39. According to the article, which is NOT an advantage of cloud computing?
- A. You don't need to buy a computer with a large amount of memory.
  - B. You can have access to your files anywhere in the world.
  - C. You don't need to spend money buying software.
  - D. You can buy a computer at a discount.
40. According to the article, how can people save money with cloud computing?
- A. You can use your files from any place in the world.
  - B. Cloud computing programs will be free to consumers.
  - C. You don't need a computer with a large amount of memory.
  - D. The ways people can save money are not stated.
